Delhi Metro's Magenta Line opens, now reach Gurugram from Noida in 50 mins

From 6am on Tuesday, commuters from Noida, south and west Delhi will be able to ditch gruelling traffic snarls and use the Janakpuri West-Botanical Garden corridor on the Delhi Metro's Magenta Line.

Union minister for housing and urban affairs Hardeep Singh Puri and Delhi chief minister Arvind Kejriwal flagged off the 24.8km Kalkaji Mandir-Janakpuri West section of the Magenta Line on Monday, completing the entire 37.4km stretch of the line.

From 6am on Tuesday, commuters from Noida, south and west Delhi will be able to ditch gruelling traffic snarls and use the Janakpuri West-Botanical Garden corridor on the Delhi Metro's Magenta Line.

A 12.6-km stretch of the Magenta Line, between Botanical Garden and Kalkaji Mandir, has been operational since December last year.

The first train of the line was flagged off at the Nehru Enclave Metro station, from where Puri and Kejriwal travelled in the Metro to Hauz Khas station along with Delhi Metro Rail Corporation (DMRC) managing director Mangu Singh and other officials.
